Only Tax Increase of 1937 Session Is on Liquor and Beer

But Removal of Sales Levy Exemptions Widens Base of Taxation

$350,000 TO BOOKS

Free Textbook and Homestead Exemption Are 1937 Accomplishments

Editor's Note—This is another of a series of articles reviewing legislation enacted at the recent session of the Arkansas General Assembly. Others in the series will follow daily.

By ED L. CAMPBELL
LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Twin problems of revenue and taxation gave the 1937 Arkansas legislature some of its bitterest moments.

Assembly members were of two minds. With eyes on the administration and ears turned toward their constituents, they appeared on the one hand willing to authorize new spending, but on the other unwilling to increase taxes.

Adjournment found spending authorized in excess of $220,000,000. Tax rates had been increased only on liquor and beer.

The voters last November directed by constitutional amendment and initiated act that the legislature furnish school children with free textbooks and property owners with homestead exemptions. Both were large orders. In addition, Gov. Carl E. Bailey asked for funds to launch a series of new state activities.

A two per cent retail sales tax proved in less than two years that it would yield approximately $4,000,000 annually. Officials said a host of exemptions made collection difficult, denuded effectiveness of the levy. The legislature debated for weeks, dragged the bill through one parliamentary snarl after another and finally enacted another sales tax law. Maintaining the 2 per cent rate, the new law exempts only farm products and cotton in its various trading forms. Advocates estimated it would produce from $5,000,000 to $7,000,000 each year.

$350,000 for Textbooks
Using anticipated revenue from this measure, the assembly provided $350,000 a year for free textbooks, $500,000 a year for homestead exemptions, and ample percentages for schools, welfare work, charitable institutions, county agricultural extension work and even a fund to reduce the state's general property tax.

The liquor tax was increased from 40 to 65 cents a gallon, the beer tax from $1 to $1.50 a barrel. The law describes the increase as an "additional" tax and directs proceeds from it shall be used to pay the salaries of county agricultural extension workers, maintain branch agricultural experiment stations, provide for hospitalization of indigents, supplement county appropriations for the state tuberculosis sanatorium, and increase confederate pensions.

The only state fee specifically reduced was the auto drivers' license, proceeds from which support the state police. This was cut from 50 cents to 35 cents, but in future each person driving a car will be required to have a license, whereas only one 50-cent license was previously required for the family. A companion law kept $5 a year the state chauffeur's fee.

In order to raise additional funds for welfare work, the legislature also directed theater "bank nights" and their cash awards 15 per cent.

Auto Licenses March 1
Governor Bailey vetoed a bill to use automobile and small truck taxes one-third, but signed a law which will give motorists from January 1 to March 1 to buy their licenses. An administration bill to increase revenue from the state income tax by lowering the brackets failed to pass, but another measure now gives income tax payers until May 15 to file their returns, formerly due March 15.

The legislature left one of the governor's favorite projects in an anomalous position. Bailey has argued frequently that property assessments in this state need equalizing. The assembly passed a bill setting up a tax supervision department for that purpose, then killed a companion measure appropriating funds for the department's operation.

The assembly placed a new curb on statehouse spending with a law requiring the secretary of state to obtain competitive bids on oil purchases for supplies for capital maintenance.

put a new check on county spending by prohibiting these political subdivisions from exceeding their highway turnback revenues during any one fiscal period.

Turned Brown By Brown Turner

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Story comes out of Washington saying the House has voted to regulate coal, when most cities on the eastern bank of the Mississippi river believe if the House had voted to regulate the smoke of coal everybody'd live longer who stayed out of automobiles. It's so these days whenever you see a great cloud of smoke there's always a city under it. However, the clouds do come in handy sometimes as they show aviators there must be a landing field somewhere in the neighborhood. Most people don't give a hang what happens to the Supreme Court, as they never get past a justice of the peace anyway.

Amendment Hinted by Sen. Robinson

But Asserts Court Plan Will Go Through—Opponents Say "No"

WASHINGTON — (AP)—William Green, pledging support of the American Federation of Labor to the Roosevelt court bill, asserted Tuesday its adoption would "retain for the supreme court the respect to which it is justly entitled."

The labor leader appeared before the senate judiciary committee at a time when a hint of a compromise from Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader, stimulated talk of a constitutional amendment to parallel legislation by the president.

Amendment Hinted
WASHINGTON — (AP)—Senator Robinson (Dem., Ark.), the Democratic leader, produced Monday night the first compromise suggestion to come from the administration side of the debate over President Roosevelt's reorganization bill.

After predicting passage of the Roosevelt measure before the session closes, he held out the possibility that a constitutional amendment may be proposed to the states, of a nature still to be determined.

While Robinson would not discuss its possible contents, it became evident that some administration leaders were favorably disposed toward an amendment offered by Senator Norris (Ind., Neb.), to limit the terms of federal judges, including those of the Supreme Court, to nine years.

Some administration backers of the president's proposal to increase the Supreme Court to a maximum of 15 justices if incumbents over 70 years of age do not retire expressed the thought that the Robinson suggestion might increase support of the White House measure.

They expressed hope it might make a favorable impression among those senators—roughly a third of the Senate—who have not yet committed themselves on the issue and some of whom are backing constitutional amendments.

"There is no inconsistency in the president's proposal and in certain amendments to the constitution that have been proposed," Robinson said in a statement carefully dictated to reporters.

"I expect the plan of the president will be approved by the congress. It is by no means certain that amendments will not also be considered by the two houses of congress for submission to the states."

"Certain amendments that have been proposed would undoubtedly be received by the public with favor. These amendments, however, do not have direct relationship to the increase in the supreme court membership which is contemplated by the president's plan."

"The latter is gaining ground steadily and I believe will be passed by both houses during the present session."

Norris submitted two proposals which he hoped might furnish material for compromise. They were the constitutional amendment limiting terms of federal judges to nine years, and a bill requiring that at least seven of the high tribunal's nine members leave before an act of congress can be declared invalid.

Senators opposing the Roosevelt bill claimed enough votes in the judiciary committee to shelve that measure and substitute an amendment to the constitution.

Peach Orchard Is Definitely Safe; Low Tuesday Is 31

Expected Second Assault of Spring Frost Fails to Materialize

NASHVILLE IS GLAD

Low Temperature 31 in Howard County and 30 in Hempstead

The Nashville peach district without its second assault Monday night without damage when a heavy frost and freeze failed to materialize as forecast by the weather bureau at Little Rock.

Reports from Nashville Tuesday noon said the official low was 31 degrees with no frost. Nashville had the same temperature Sunday night plus a light snow.

Orchardists were of the opinion that Monday night's freeze was less severe than that of Sunday night when small damage was encountered, that in low areas and by trees in weak condition.

The immediate danger is believed past as the weather bureau at Little Rock Tuesday predicted cloudy and warmer weather for southwest Arkansas Tuesday night and Wednesday.

G. W. Ware, assistant director in charge of the Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment station here, said the low for Hempstead county Monday night was 30 degrees, which is 2½ degrees warmer than Sunday night.

He estimated the damage to Hempstead county fruit crops as slight.

Frost Damage Slight
LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Rising temperatures heartened Arkansas fruit growers Tuesday.

Sub-freezing temperatures over the week-end caused only slight loss in the southwest Arkansas peach belt, the Extension Service reported. It will be several days before a definite estimate of damage can be made.

Federalists Drop 760 Aerial Bombs

Brihuega is about 44 miles from Madrid. The government commanders said 760 bombs were dropped on the town and on enemy positions in the immediate vicinity, taking a huge toll of lives among the insurgent troops.

U. S. Reserve Asks Balanced Budget

Chairman Eccles Favors Income, Profits Taxes, If Necessary

WASHINGTON — (AP)—Chairman Marriner S. Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board called Monday night for "a prompt balancing of the federal budget" through imposition of higher income and profits taxes if necessary.

Eccles detailed his views on prices and credit, pledged continuance of the board's "easy money" policy and said that increased wages and shorter hours which restrict production "are not at this time in the interest of the public in general or in the real interest of the workers themselves."

Officials said the statement was issued to put an end to misleading rumors regarding the board's credit policies.

A slump in government bonds last Friday was attributed by some officials here to "dopesters" predictions that money would become tighter. The selling wave of last Friday was followed Monday by widening losses in the government bond list.

Eccles said that with large numbers of people still unemployed any move to tighten money rates "would not only be anti-social but uneconomic. He attributed sharp price rises recently to "non-monetary factors," including foreign demand, strikes, and "monopolistic practices by certain groups both in industry and organized labor."

Eccles said that "the upward spiral of wages and prices into inflationary price levels can be as disastrous as the downward spiral of deflation." He said the remedy for price inflation was a broad expansion of production rather than a tightening of money rates.

"Under present conditions of accelerating recovery," he added, "a continuous easy money policy to be successful in achieving and maintaining a balanced recovery must be accompanied by a prompt balancing of the federal budget and the subsequent retirement of public debt."

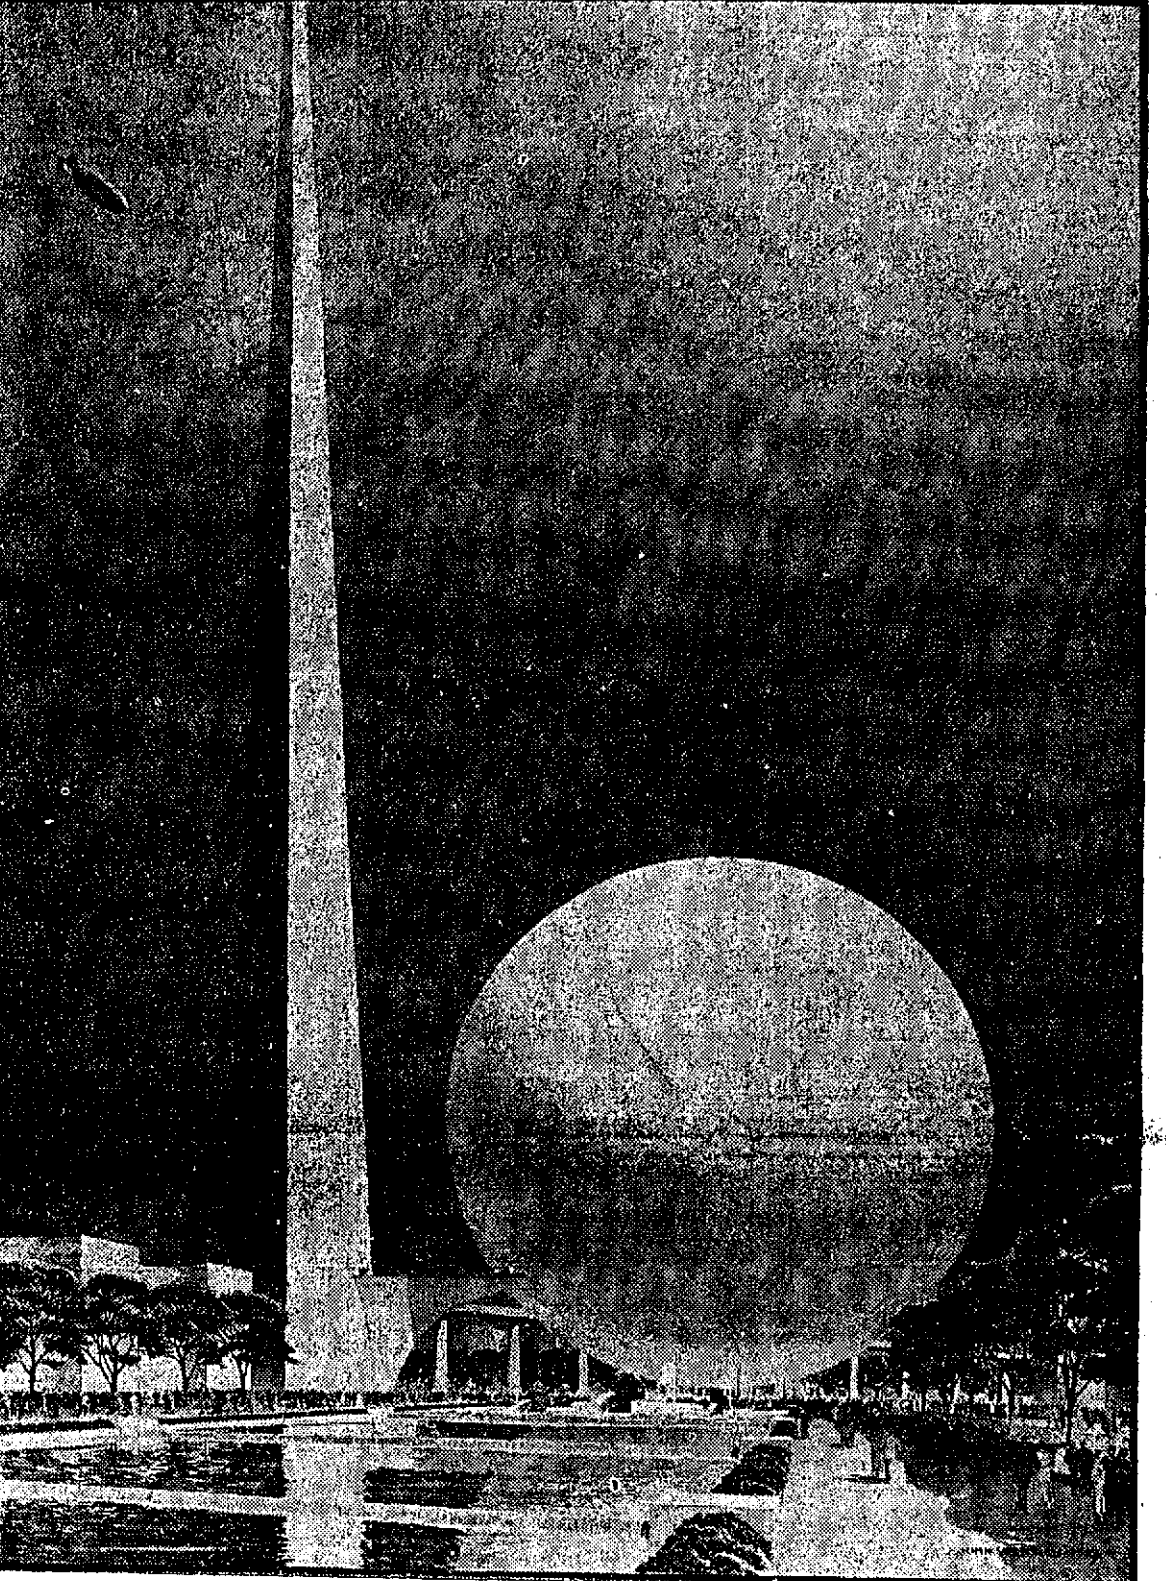

"I have not been and I am not now in favor of balancing the budget at the expense of the destitute and the unemployed who are unable to find private employment, but I am in favor of increasing taxes on incomes and profits if necessary to sustain the volume of relief and at the same time bring the budget into balance and permit the paying down of public debt as private debt expands. Only by this process can monetary inflation be prevented."

Michigan Governor Again Arbitrator

Returns to Detroit in Hotel and Chrysler Motor Strike Trouble

DETROIT, Mich.—(AP)—Governor Frank Murphy came to Detroit Tuesday afternoon to essay once more the role of mediator in the labor troubles of this strike-hurried city.

His immediate objective was the reopening of four large downtown hotels, one closed by strike and three by their managements.

But it was understood he planned also to endeavor to find a basis of understanding between the closed Chrysler corporation and the United Automobile Workers of America.

There was but one method, he asserted, to "insure safety for the future"—labor must become articulate. If we can organize the masses of American workers we can free them from industrial servitude. If we can free them from industrial servitude we can, in the fullest sense, free them from the political shackles which in the past have restrained and limited their strength.

Lewis said recent figures published in the "official paper of that hideous substitute for the once great trade union movement known as the German Labor Front," showed that "one-third of the German workers earn less than $2 a week."

"These," he added, "show that the death rate of workers increased 32 per cent from 1932 to 1935."

Furlough Policy to Be Abolished
Indefinite Furlough to Be Discontinued Under Governor Bailey
LITTLE ROCK—The indefinite furlough, a form of clemency brought into being by the late Gov. T. C. McRae, will be discontinued as soon as the plan can be completed for the state Penal Board and the state Police Department to take over supervision of probation and paroles. Governor Bailey said Monday.

There is no statutory authority for an indefinite furlough, but the supreme court has held that such clemency is a conditional pardon and within the power of the governor.

The governor said that as soon as the new set-up begins to function clemency will be discontinued.

ASSASSINS FEARED

Goering, Hitler's Aide, Reveals Trouble Behind Political Scenes

NEW YORK—(AP)—Propelled by an explosion outburst against Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany and his political philosophies, a drive against Nazis in America was crystallized Tuesday in an attempt to obtain the arrest of one of their leaders.

Major Julius Hochfelder, in behalf of the German-American League of Culture, announced his determination to seek a warrant for the arrest of Fritz Kuhn, of Detroit, whom he described as the head of "an alien military organization," on charges of violating New York's penal laws.

Nazis Fear Assassination
BERLIN, Germany—(AP)—Colonel-General Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Germany's No. 2 man, made a sensational and unexplained reference in a radio speech Tuesday to "those who believe, as a last resort, to overcome Germany through murder and cowardly attempts."

In some quarters the phrases were interpreted as a sensational intimation that a possible attempt on the lives of leading personalities of the Nazi regime might have come to the government's attention.

Johnson, Lewis Attack
NEW YORK—(AP)—Hugh S. Johnson, in a speech before thousands in a Madison Square Garden demonstration against Nazism, said Monday night "Adolf Hitler and his immediate staff of Nazis have become a sort of monster, threatening the peace of the world."

But, said the former NRA administrator, they menaced peace "only a little more than Stalin and his crew of primitives."

"There is," he added, "little that seems normal or human about either." "There is no great difference," he went on, "between the totalitarian state of Hitler and the empire of the Kaiser, except the cut of the mustache of supreme authority. This country does not presume to tell other peoples how they should be governed, but we have a right to stand here on our shores and tell other peoples how we will not be governed."

John L. Lewis, head of the Committee for Industrial Organization, asserted the four-year record of the Nazi regime "reveals a program more thorough in its ghastly practices than any of us could have foreseen in 1933."

The German government, he added, had practiced a "deadly terror" against workers and against all minorities.

"Unionism," he said, "no longer exists in Germany. Hundreds of union leaders have been murdered because of their loyalty to the trust, placed in them by German workers." In this country, he went on, "if we can establish industrial democracy we can insure the continuance of its political democracy."

There was but one method, he asserted, to "insure safety for the future"—labor must become articulate. If we can organize the masses of American workers we can free them from industrial servitude. If we can free them from industrial servitude we can, in the fullest sense, free them from the political shackles which in the past have restrained and limited their strength.

Lewis said recent figures published in the "official paper of that hideous substitute for the once great trade union movement known as the German Labor Front," showed that "one-third of the German workers earn less than $2 a week."

The Family Doctor

The Bite of a Mad Dog Is Just as Dangerous in Winter as in Summer

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

(No. 162)

The word "rabies" is Latin for "madness." Hydrophobia means fear of water. These definitions present what seem to be the most significant symptoms of this disease.

So horrible was hydrophobia that innumerable superstitions developed regarding its cause and methods of cure.

It was customary, for instance, to burn with a red hot iron the flesh of a person who had been bitten by any mad animal. In some places it was customary to apply to bite wounds a so-called "mad stone," which was supposed to draw out the poison of hydrophobia. And it was believed that dog bites carried madness only on hot days, which became known as "dog days."

There is no evidence to support the belief that the bite of a mad dog is worse in summer than in winter. It is just as dangerous at one time as another. Dog bites may be more frequent from April to September than from October to March because dogs run loose more often during the milder weather.

When a dog bites another animal or a human being, the disease is transmitted by its saliva, which contains the poisonous material. About 14 days after the bite the disease will begin to appear if the person is infected.

The shorter the distance from the location of the bite to the brain—the shorter the time before the disease starts, and the greater its virulence. For this reason, bites on the face or lips may be much more serious than those elsewhere on the body.

In the vast majority of cases, the onset of the disease follows the bite by 20 to 90 days. During this "incubation period," there may be only symptoms of restlessness, apprehension and sometimes irritation and tingling pain at the site of the wound.

When the disease begins, the horrible symptoms which give it its name make their appearance. There is a slight huskiness of the voice and a sense of choking, due to the fact that the swallowing and breathing muscles go into spasms.

The victim may refuse water because of the spasms and the pain associated with swallowing. Eventually these convulsions and spasms may affect the whole body and, finally, the spine may stiffen and bend. Death in such cases results from a general paralysis.

Like many film writers she likes to say the lines aloud before writing them, and visitors to her home often are startled to hear her declaiming the dire threats of a dog-rustler as he trains a pair of six-guns on the hero's pals. Actually, Miss Guilan is scared to death of guns.

She doesn't depend entirely on film work for a living. Owns a profitable anti-gray hair tonic company which she bought from a friend years ago. "You'd be surprised how many stars use the stuff," she says, but doesn't name any of the stars.

How Italians Mop Up in Africa.

When Haile Selassie fled and Addis Ababa fell, the Ethiopian war dropped out of the news—to come back in, briefly, the other day when some native flung a bomb at an Italian general. The job of pacification is on now, and it doesn't make headlines.

But you can get some sort of idea of what is going on by reading Knud Holmboe's "Desert Encounter" (Putnam: $3).

To be sure, Mr. Holmboe writes about the Italians in Libya, not Ethiopia. But the cases are much the same. Libya was "conquered" some years ago; the mopping-up process has been going on ever since. Mr. Holmboe saw it and described it in this book. It isn't pretty.

Fascism was clamping down on the natives. To be blunt, it was going on with what amounted to a campaign of extermination. Desert wells were being filled with cement, armed tribesmen were under martial law, the prisoners were full to bursting.

Mr. Holmboe, decidedly pro-native, finally got imprisoned, too. He had to abandon his trip, when they freed him; no one could cross the back country of Cyrenaica. And his story, thrilling as a personal adventure narrative, is deeply significant as a picture of imperialism applying the last turn of the screw to a conquered people.

STORIES IN STAMPS

BY I. S. KLEIN

BLUFF THAT GAINED A COLONY

THE recent rumor that German troops were being shipped to Morocco, and were fortifying Ceuta opposite Gibraltar, caused great concern in France and England until Germany denied it. But the story recalled the famous "incident" of 1911, in which a bluff by Kaiser Wilhelm II brought his country a large slice of the French Congo, and economic advantages in Africa.

At that time European nations were eager for power in North Africa. German interests had some mines near Agadir, in Morocco, and on pretext of protecting his pioneers, Wilhelm sent the gunboat Panther to Agadir. Rage and resentment stirred France and Italy, and there was threat of war. The incident was cleared up ultimately, but not before Germany got its "bribe" for withdrawing from the Moroccan port.

Now definitely French, Agadir is pictured on one of the stamps issued by France for Morocco in 1933.

Why Laxatives Fail In Stubborn Constipation

Twelve to 24 hours is too long to wait when relief from clogged bowels and constipation is needed, for then enormous quantities of bacteria accumulate, causing GAS, indigestion and many restless, sleepless nights. Take a liquid compound such as Adierika. Adierika contains SEVEN cathartic and carminative ingredients that act on the stomach and BOTH bowels. Most "overnight" laxatives contain one ingredient that acts on the lower bowel only.

Adierika's DOUBLE ACTION gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out and destroying waste matter that may have caused GAS pains, sour stomach, headaches and sleepless nights for months. Adierika relieves stomach GAS at once and usually removes bowel congestion in less than two hours. No waiting for overnight results. This famous treatment has been recommended by many doctors and druggists for 25 years. Take Adierika one-half hour before bedtime or one hour before bedtime and in a short while you will feel marvelously refreshed.

Your Children

Child's Limping Is Danger Sign to Heed

It is no wonder that the mother of a tiny child is confused when she goes to buy new shoes.

Shall they be high or low? Shall they be heavy, study ones to keep the feet braced, or soft little affairs to allow muscles full play, and the feet to do their own bracing?

I have bought so many, and under such varieties of good advice that I now depend on my own judgment.

I have discovered this much, that if shoes are level along their entire soles, big enough to allow for room, without rubbing either heels or toes, while enough to keep out weather, and flexible enough for muscles of work, the rest is not too important, except in special cases.

One time I was buying "low-cuts" for a two-year-old in a very good store. The clerk was so upset that I changed my mind and purchased a pair of high ones. "Dr. So-and-So," he mentioned a well-known orthopedist, "never recommends low shoes for children of two or under."

Others Lower Limit
I asked another "foot" man about it later, and he lowered the limit to one year. Another doctor wrote that babies' first walking shoes should be as soft as the bare foot itself. But I believe that most specialists prefer bracing the ankle.

If there is the least tendency for an ankle to hinge or turn, there is certainly no choice. Some children have to wear the higher shoes for several years.

What a difference there is now with our common-sense shoes for growing children, over the old days when no one thought that feet were important. The price went into fancy buttons or velvet tops and if children could walk in them and they didn't pinch too hard, that was just fine.

It is excellent for all children to take off their shoes and run about the house a bit in bare feet. It is also a good idea for them to put hands on hips, and lift themselves up and down on heels. It takes only a few moments and both ankle and leg muscles are strengthened.

Heed Child's Complaints
If a child complains that there is a rough place inside his shoe, or something that rubs, and we see him "sawing" that place and walking crooked or limping, we had best look into the shoes at once and see what can be done. Maybe it has grown too short for his toes.

A few weeks of walking crooked can upset the bone-conformity, a condition that may persist. Crooked heels throw the whole body out of line. If a child wears one heel down, or both, too quickly, on either the outside or inside, he is not walking right and may possibly need professional attention. Crooked heels should be repaired when they begin to slant.

As for our two-year-olds and less, the matter of dressing feet depends on the parents' own good judgment, let us say, unless a specialist is giving specific advice for certain reasons, and the thing to do then is to listen, and to take it.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

When DAPHNE BRETT took her younger sister, JENNIFER, under her arm in an effort to launch her on a successful career in New York, she was not alone.

She was ready to elope with TUCKER AINSLEY, wealthy playboy, and would have eloped had not Daphne stepped in time to prevent the wedding.

Next, Jennifer had made a play for the affections of LARRY SMITH, attractive young architect, with whom Daphne is in love.

Weeks dragged on in which the sisters became increasingly estranged. Then Daphne sent Jennifer to a shore resort for vacation and Jennifer met GORDON HERRING, famous theater producer.

At the same time Daphne, who has been asked by Larry to become his wife, is sent on a two-month sales trip across the country.

It is a happy, because she knows this will give her enough money to see Jennifer safely started, she tells Larry.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"So, I'm selfish, am I?" Larry placed a box of white flowers on Daphne's table, fished a box of candy from one pocket, a toy dog from another and from an inside pocket, took out a very small, white box.

"I didn't mean it. I didn't mean it. I didn't mean it," Daphne said and slipped from his arms. "You're the sweetest, most generous person in the world and I love the dog. I've always wanted one just like this."

"But why don't you put him down and give me a little of your attention while I tell you my news?"

"Consider it all yours but first I want to know if you are going to ask me to marry you because if you are . . ."

"I'm not as a matter of fact. I'm telling you that you are going to marry me."

"Oh, so that's the way it is! You're going to be the Magnificent Brute, are you? Well, listen to me."

"I thought I had the floor." She looked properly subdued.

"You are not only going to marry me but you are going to marry me tomorrow. Hand in hand we are going down . . ."

She captured one of those hands. "Darling," she pleaded, "don't lose your breath. Take it easy and tell me what this all means."

"It means that we are going to build castles in Spain."

"That's exactly what it sounds like to me. You're very lucid, Mr. Smith."

Mr. and Mrs. Alvord Brooks and daughter, Maurice and Fred Yates were business visitors in Hope Monday.

Winton Wade, Harlow Honea and John Wade spent Monday in Nashville.

Mrs. Flora Cotton Slater of Hope spent Monday night with friends near Blevins.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Wood left Wednesday for their new home in Wright Plantation, near England, Ark.

Rev. J. A. Copeland of Delight filled his regular appointment at Blevins church of Christ Sunday.

Mrs. A. H. Wade and daughter, Eva Jane, spent Thursday visiting relatives in Prescott.

Mrs. Aubrey Lewis and Miss Mozelle Lewis of Hope, visited Miss Eva Bonds Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Nesbitt were shopping in Prescott Saturday.

Mrs. Maggie Ritchie of Strong is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Melton White and Mr. White.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Bonds and daughter, Teresa Ann, visited relatives near Blevins Tuesday.

"If you'll sit on my knee, I'll be very lucid. There! Well, I'm—we're—sailing for Spain on Friday. You and I, Mr. and Mrs. Smith. Is that clear?"

Daphne got off his lap and walked over to a table. She flung the petals of the white blossoms.

"Larry, don't you think it would be better if you went alone? Then, when you've got everything . . . I mean your material, we could . . . could have a real wedding and a honeymoon."

Silence. Perplexed silence. "Don't you want to go, Daphne?" Very quickly she said, "Of course I do but . . . but . . ."

"Are you going to give me any more of that line about my responsibilities and not being able to afford a wife?"

"Oh, no," she said and took two of the flowers from the bowl. She studied the effect carefully.

"Can you give me any good reason why you don't want to go?" "No," she said. "Only . . ."

Silence. Hurt silence.

SHE put the flowers back in the bowl. "Larry, please don't ask me why, only please don't ask me to marry you before you go. I'll marry you later if you still want me to."

"Daphne!" "Yes, Larry," she said after a while.

"Don't you want to tell me why you want me to wait?" "Well," she said brightly, "You know my job . . . that is, you know how hard I've been working on the Georgian account?"

"Larry, my campaign has been approved. That is, the one suggesting the tour across the country. Now, they seem to feel that I know more about it than anyone else and so they want me to manage it. That means that I will have to go."

"I see," he said tensely. "You can't, of course, let your agency down."

If Daphne's nerves hadn't been on edge she would have understood his sarcasm. As it was, she said, "There is that point. After all, I do owe my company something. It has supported me, and Jennifer, for six years now. And I am responsible for the success of that account. I can't very well let them down."

Larry stood up, picked up his hat. Something inside Daphne cried out, don't let him go. Tell him that you aren't what you are trying ing to make yourself out to be. And something else inside her said, he should understand you, his love should be big enough to accept what you say, he should know you are not selfish.

"Well, I guess I should have known what you've been trying to tell me for the last three months, Daphne. You haven't ever given me a reason for not accepting me, have you?"

She stood there calmly enough while her heart roared.

"It was stupid of me not to have seen that you cared more for your job. I wish you success. I hope its a great trip. Are you still going to make it?"

"Yes," she said. "I've got to do it."

"Then I guess it's goodbye." Without another word to her he went out the door.

Daphne didn't cry. She went into her bedroom and began emptying the drawers of her dresser. She piled her lingerie in neat little bundles. She washed her collars and cuffs and packed the things she thought she'd need on her trip. She straightened out her check book and polished the set of silver bowls.

And all the time she was saying, all lovers have quarrels, Larry will telephone me tonight and we'll both break down and he will understand and it will be all right.

But Larry didn't call that night. Or the next day. Or any of the days that followed until it was time for Daphne to leave.

Larry had meant it when he said goodbye.

Daphne wrote and tore up a score of notes. If he loved her, he would love her when next they met . . .

A month later, Anne Cockerell wrote to her at Detroit.

"I met Larry today," she wrote. "Just spoke to him for a moment. Has anything happened between you two? I asked him if he was looking so wan because you were so far away and he said it was nothing but disappointment. Not being able to go to Spain, he felt that the way was a personal injury. I congratulated him. Things are bad over there, aren't they? By the way, you're a poor correspondent. Even Larry couldn't tell me any news of you . . ."

Travelers Start Training Tuesday

Opening Day Drill Monday Is Postponed Because of Weather

LITTLE ROCK.—A thin layer of snow over Travelers Field Monday made it necessary to postpone the opening spring drills of the Little Rock Travelers, but Manager Prothro ordered his athletes to report at 11 Tuesday morning prepared to go into action. Players who have reported are: Pitchers—Jim Bagby Jr., Adrian Gensolen, Wayman Kerkisick, Jennings, Pointexter, Bob Porter, Alexander Mustakis, Byron Humphreys, Marvin Ulrich and Owen Sheetz.

Catchers—Harry Condon and Dan Vickers.

Infielders—Charles Heyer, Outfielders—Glen Chapman and Harold Simpson.

Several Boston Red Sox results, scheduled to train here, also have arrived, but will not register until the arrival of Billy Evans, expected Tuesday or Wednesday.

Although infielders and outfielders are not scheduled to report until Monday, Prothro had yet to hear from Al Eimies, holdout second baseman and Catcher Ray Thompson, who seriously is thinking of quitting baseball for work in another field.

Prothro admitted that the pitching looked weak at the present but believed he will develop a formidable staff before playing time. He is counting heavily on Pointexter, Porter and Humphreys and possibly Mustakis, if Alex's ailing elbow has healed.

With any and everything subject to change at this date, the Doctor sized up the situation other than the bat-teries as follows:

"I'm counting on Jack O'Neil at first, Al Neimeie at second, Bunnie Griffiths at short and Sammy Libert at third. If he is completely recovered from his fractured left arm, Art Graham will get the call in left field with Leo Nonnenkamp in center and Chapman in right."

Prothro has been promised additional pitching strength from the Boston club and anticipates a couple of hurlers with the ability to start in regular turns.

The PAYOFF

By RICHARD McCANN

NEA Service Sports Writer

Firmly believing that all horse players not only die broke but fail to pay their bills before passing away, a posse of Texas business men have banded together and are endeavoring to have horse racing ruled off the course in the Lone Star State.

With the aid of churchmen, they have persuaded the Senate to pass a bill repealing the law under which racing is legal. The bill seems quite innocent. It merely requires that 90 per cent of the employees at Texas race tracks be Texans. But tacked on to the end as a rider are a few sentences prohibiting betting on horse races.

This bill is now before the Texas house and even the most hopeful of the horsemen fear that racing is riding for a fall.

And it was only four years ago that racing was legalized in Texas amid the joyous whinnies of the populace. But now, despite the fact that the state collected $500,000 or so in taxes from the tracks last year, that enthusiasm has died down. Especially the enthusiasm of the business men.

"On the days that people go to the races they don't go shopping," mourns Baily Peyton, San Antonio credit man. "The stores are deserted."

Mr. K. H. Parker, Dallas real estate man, says that he thinks the money spent on race track wagers last year would have bought 2,000,000 suits of clothes, or 1500 homes or 220,000 radios. Although heavens knows what anybody would want with that many radios.

A lot of business men in California have the same idea as the Texas storekeepers. For instance, just outside the Santa Anita race track on Welshire Boulevard a group of them have erected a huge sign which asks you as you go by "Are you playing the races or paying your bills?"

The anti-race feeling isn't as you can see, peculiar to Texas business men.

It's too bad for the race folk that Col. W. T. Waggoner isn't alive. The old millionaire oil and cattle king fought a successful one-man battle for legalization of racing and undoubtedly he would be able to save it.

Colonel Waggoner was so enthusiastic about horses and racing that he built beautiful Arlington Downs track at Dallas—grand stand, clubhouse, paddock, stables and all—four years before betting was legalized. Then he offered large enough purses to attract pretty good horses from around the country to run against his own and other Texas ponies and conducted the only track in the U. S. without betting.

It cost the colonel something like $2,000,000 to erect the plant on his Three-D Stock Farm land, and many thousands more to operate the track, but money meant little to him. He was fabulously wealthy and owned more land than the state of Rhode Island.

His track is the finest of the four major plants in Texas. It has a mile-and-a-half track, a glassed-in grand stand, a luxurious clubhouse and a seating capacity of 7500. Last year a "tote" was installed by his sons, Guy and Paul, who have inherited some of their father's love of horses.

The other three major tracks are Alamo Downs in San Antonio, Espom Downs in Houston and Fair Park in Dallas. They aren't as elaborate as the Waggoner plant but the cost thousands to build and their owners are willing over the fact that they will be good for nothing except chicken roosts if the repeal bill goes through.

Repeal, of course, would also force abandonment of the numerous fine breeding farms around the state.

Waggoner's Three-D Stock Farm, Dick George's Glad Acres Farms, Bedford Stock Farms, Fishburn Stables, Valinda Farms and the Stroube-Turn farm at Corsicana are among the best in the country.

They have produced numerous good colts since the sport was legalized. Of course, if the legislators stuff a sponge in the sport's nose, they will move their horses elsewhere.

The best-known Texas-bred horse was Liberty Limited, Waggoner's entry in the Kentucky Derby of several years back. Liberty Limited was great as a two-year-old and much was expected of him in the Derby. But he broke down and was retired to stud.

Trainer John Pryce, of the Waggoner stables, now thinks that it has a horse that would warm the heart of the old colonel if he could see him run. It's Heelily, by Royal Ford out of Confil. Pryce thinks that it can win the Derby.

It's the best horse ever bred in Texas," he says.

Well, maybe so, but it looks like that saying about a prophet being without honor, etc., applies to horses, too. Heelily will have to do his heel-kicking some place else.

Unless, of course, the repealists come a-copper.

Tobacco sold in the ownshores, Ky., market this season netted growers $2,106,540.

PHILADELPHIA. — Things aren't running along for Ted Meredith quite as smoothly as he ran a few years back. Ted, you see, hasn't got a job right now and his active mind and muscles demand employment, even if his pocket-book doesn't.

Of course, you remember Ted. He was the boy wonder of the 1912 Olympic Games in Stockholm and ruled the middle distance runners from then until he went to France with the U. S. Air Corps.

Well, about two years ago Ted was hired by the Czechoslovakian government to teach the youth of that nation how to run, jump and carry on in other ways in track and field affairs. Ted did all right, too, but just as the World War interrupted his own running career, so has the threat of a new European war halted his coaching career.

It seems that Czechoslovakia, penceable itself, is right in the center of the ring and Ted isn't one to get himself all mixed up in somebody else's private war. So he upped and resigned and hustled back here.

But now he finds himself somewhat unemployed and that doesn't sit well with the energetic Mr. Meredith at all. "I'd like to get a job in a hurry coaching some place," says Ted. "I like track—it's in my blood. And I like coaching. It's fun."

Good Together

Whether or not he hitches himself to a coaching post, Meredith probably will resume his bonding business here in Philadelphia, where he makes his home.

He was in the dye manufacturing business right after his graduation from the University of Pennsylvania and after he was honorably discharged from the A. E. F. he became a bond salesman. Each time the track star's business went along, you might say, by leaps and bounds.

If he is forced to abandon his coaching plans, it will be track's loss, in the opinion of Lawson Robertson, dean of American cinder path coaches.

"Meredith, unlike so many great athletes, is a good teacher and can impart his knowledge to others," Robertson will tell you.

And Robertson should know. Meredith both ran and coached under him. From 1912 until 1916 won more races for Pennsylvania than Jim Farley has stamps, setting records at the time for the 440-yard, quarter-mile and half-mile events. He came back to Pennsylvania in 1931 to help Robertson for four years.

"And I'm telling you," says Robertson, "he was quite a help."

Meredith, however, gained his greatest fame running in the togs of Mercersburg Academy in Pennsylvania. He was, without doubt, one of the greatest schoolboy trackmen in history. It was in his final year at Mercersburg that he won a berth on the 1912 Olympic team.

Young, fresh-looking, he was the true, living picture of the American Boy and sports fans took him to their hearts.

Didn't Have Chance

But, much as they loved him, they didn't think that he had a chance when he did the heat for Stockholm with the American Olympic team. Neither did his teammates.

"I guess I was the most surprised person in the whole stadium when Meredith breezed past me at the finish of the 800," says Mel Sheppard, the American veteran, who had been favored to repeat his 1908 victory. "I didn't give him a thought. I heard somebody pounding along behind me throughout the race but I didn't think of Meredith at all. I thought it was Hans Braun, the German—or Davenport, another American. But not Meredith."

"You see none of us thought that Meredith, just a boy, had quite enough to win an Olympic event, and so

Meredith Seeks Track Coach Job

Former Olympic Boy Wonder Returns Home From Europe

This is the seventh of a series about former sport stars.

By RICHARD McCANN

NEA Service Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA. — Things aren't running along for Ted Meredith quite as smoothly as he ran a few years back. Ted, you see, hasn't got a job right now and his active mind and muscles demand employment, even if his pocket-book doesn't.

Of course, you remember Ted. He was the boy wonder of the 1912 Olympic Games in Stockholm and ruled the middle distance runners from then until he went to France with the U. S. Air Corps.

Well, about two years ago Ted was hired by the Czechoslovakian government to teach the youth of that nation how to run, jump and carry on in other ways in track and field affairs. A new sure-fire cure for a rubber neck has just been discovered by Stacy Smith, of Newark, N. J. Smith's 2-year-old trotter, Blair, in training at the Pinehurst, N. ### How to Behave in Attending Church

Don't Run Off and Leave the Usher—He'll Find You a Seat

By JOHN DURHAM
AP Feature Service Writer

Easter church-going brings church manners into the etiquette spotlight. Most people are careful to refrain from holding conversations either before the services have begun or during the worship hour. They make it a courteous practice to share hymn and prayer books with occupants of the pew or row of seats in which they are sitting—whether the pew or seat happens to "belong" to them or not.

Selecting Seats

But there is one breach of church etiquette committed by many otherwise polite church members.

Instead of telling the usher where they prefer to sit—and then follow him—many hesitant members of the congregation let the unfortunate usher start down the aisle searching for a satisfactory location while they duck into the first vacant pew they pass.

There are also a number of other-wise good church citizens who insist on sitting next to the aisle and thereby inconvenience others.

The problem of what customs to follow in attending a church service often arises. In churches which have a fairly simple ritual it is comparatively easy to behave as those about one do.

In general there are three customs for visitors to observe in Catholic

Lloyds Revealed in New Hit

The inner workings of the most extraordinary and exciting business organization in the world, Lloyds of London, the father of modern insurance and the forerunner of world-wide news agencies, is told in "Lloyds of London," which opens Thursday at the Saenger.

Consisting of about fifteen hundred individuals, Lloyds itself writes no insurance policies. These are written by member underwriters as individuals, and no policy is granted for a longer period than one year.

The thrilling story of the great love that changed the course of empire is told in "Lloyds of London," that features Medelaine Carroll and Tyrone Power, hailed as the screen's new sensational sweethearts, in the romantic leads.

Freddie Bartholomew is starred with Miss Carroll, and the impressive cast also features the late Sir Guy Standing, C. Aubrey Smith and Virginia Field.

Manager Swanick has arranged with the Greening Insurance Agency to give to each patron upon entering an Insurance policy for $100, covering their home against fire loss while seeing this outstanding hit.

What Man Is to Wear on Easter

Silk Shirts Popular Again for First Time Since the World War

By JOHN J. KELLY
AP Feature Service Writer

NEW YORK.—With Easter only days away, what the average man will wear again becomes an ever-present problem.

Cue thing is certain—contrary to his wife, he will dress to please himself and no arbitrary dictates from so-called high places will influence his decisions.

Styles in men's wear change slowly, but they do change. It is no longer a matter for raised eyebrows, for instance, when junior executives arrive at their offices garbed in houndstooth jackets of wondrous hue and the maddest of plaid slacks.

Color Everywhere

Less inhibited, more prosperous, prayer than a year ago, men are turning to color wherever possible—particularly in shirts and ties.

Hand-blocked foulards with huge figures, highly colored silks with small figures, regimental stripes with plenty of red, polka dots on Charvet-type materials—all are becoming more popular.

Properly noted: For the first time since the swift, careless days of the World War, men are demanding silk shirts—but with what a difference. The new ones are in the best of taste, running to rather broad stripes of white on gray, white on blue and solid colors. The greatest call is for those with attached collars, cut rather low.

Scotch net in pastels is also an increasingly popular shirting material for business and sport.

Several pleasant innovations in footwear have made their appearance. The high-walled oxford in Norwegian pattern may well be headed for a boom, so attractive is its combination of leathers and colors. It comes in reversed Russian calf, brown leather with white trim and white with brown trim. Very gay this, but not for dew-soaked fairways.

Ostrich Golf Shoes

For golf the newest note is ostrich, which is peculiarly adapted to the game because the minute holes from which the quills have been pulled serve as ventilators.

Conservatives stick to black or tan calf for business, the accent being on trimness of line and restraint in decoration.

All in all, it will be a bright spring picture—but summer will be an even brighter one.

GOOD GARDENING

Build Garden on Five-Year Plan

By Donald Gray
NEA Gardening Consultant

Garden expenditures may be placed on a budget basis. It is the one phase of home building that can be lined up on a five-year program. Some of it can be done the first year, and the rest over a period of years.

Here is a suggestion for the garden maker:

First sketch a layout of your garden

Here is a suggested plan for a back yard garden, where the garage is in the rear of the lot. A—flower beds; B—shrubbery; C—lawn.

area. No matter how crude the plan, put it down on paper.

Such a plan will show where you need topsoil 12 inches deep, 15 inches deep, or 5 inches deep. This is important, because it is more economical to make these planting beds at the period of grading than any time afterwards. Run a drain and water line out to the pool location and include it in the plumbing of the house. When the time comes for building the pool the pipes will be at hand.

The first year may include the lawn, topsoil in the shrubbery and the flower beds, and the planting of trees. The second year program may cover shrub and evergreen planting. Then also you may plant seed of perennials.

The third year may see the shock of the cost of furniture in the house will be over, so that the perennials can be planted and the paved terrace installed.

The fourth year should see the construction of the pool and perhaps a fine little garden statue. The latter must have distinction and not be an ordinary common affair.

The fifth year should see interesting garden furniture on the terrace, potted plants of the rarer kinds and refinement of annuals.

During all these years there can be annual flowers. A dollar's worth of

Charlie Can Bat Too

DETROIT—If Charlie Gehringer, Detroit Tigers' star second baseman, would devote more time to bedminton, he might become world's champion.

Such is the opinion of Norman Durkin, state professional champion, with whom Charlie played a series of practice games here recently. Durkin admitted that Gehringer had beaten him five times.

India is the source of much of the world's short staple cotton.

Customers For Visitors

First, it is only polite to sit, stand and kneel when regular members of the congregation do so. Second, it is considered proper for women visitors to cover their heads. Third, many non-Catholics are embarrassed to discover that numerous Catholic churches take up two collections. The first, often collected at the door, is generally called the "fee" or "charge." The second corresponds to the regular collection taken in most Protestant churches.

Most Catholics feel, however, that it is unnecessary for outsiders to genuflect (bend the knee just before entering the pew or seat) or to make the sign of the cross during the ceremony.
